THE HESPERIAN

for

JANUARY

M I N N E A P O L I S , M I N N E S O T A

THIS is a chronicle of winter. The story has its beginning amid the despoiled foliage of September and draws to a close in the snows and storms of January. These months and those intervening unite to form a frosty background for the events of the semester. Here is the record of a term's achievement, and, lest those who graduate and depart from school during this term be no more remembered than the snows of yesteryear, they are the first to be celebrated in this volume.

OUTSIDERS see the school as so much concrete, so many feet of lumber, so many tons of yellow brick, so many dollars' worth of furniture and equipment. But that is only the skeleton of the school, the mere physical outline of a spiritual concept. The school itself lives, breathes, and has its existence in the generations of feet that tread its halls and the fluctuating faces that bend over its desks. The complete record of these faces at any time is a picture of the school at that period.

ALTHOUGH classes make up the body of school life, it is the little interludes between the classes that will be remembered. Textbooks and teachers have due effect upon the mental habits of pupils, but schoolmates retain a place in their memories. A moment at a football game will be remembered long after the principles of mathematics are forgotten, visions of a class play will come to mind sooner than visions of a history map, and clubs more often than classes will recur in retrospect to the alumnus.

FALL SPORTS

A REVIEW of fall sports indicates that athletics at West are on the upgrade. Two championships, a tie for second place, and a successful season, morally, if not athletically, in the remaining sport present a creditable showing.

Cross Country

The cross country team, under the training of Coach Louis Zavodsky, brought its competition to an impressive culmination by winning for the second consecutive time, the city and state titles, and the Josten trophy emblematic of the state cross country championship. The harriers competed with the three other high schools entered in the prep race and in each meet emerged on the long end of the count.

In the first run of the season, with Edison, the Zavodskymen triumphed 72-48, the surprising feature of the meet being the establishment of the green material as possessors of regular berths on the squad. The Roosevelt runners were the next aggregation to fall before the fleet Westerners to the tune of 88-32. The determination of the small Western band was not to be stamped out, and for the third time the Hennepin Avenue men conquered, trampling the Roosevelt hill and dale men 72-48, thus crowning themselves city champions.

But the greatest glory of all came several weeks later, when six runners romped through a classy field of the state's best to defend the state title and Josten trophy. Another notable incident of this race was the establishment of a national record by placing every man entered within the first ten places. Captain John Feidt, Willard Tatam, Clyde Gorman, Powell Krueger, Fred Hebert, and Bob Neuman composed the winning team.

GOLF

A. B. OPFER, Coach

Golf

The Green and White golfers went through the usual city competition without a setback to win their second consecutive golf title. Captain Billy Boutell, Phil Halvorsen, Pat Sawyer, and John Barnum composed the team, all of whom will be back next season to keep the competition hot.

Tennis

The raquetmen finished in a tie with Edison for second place. For the past two years the netmen have gradually improved with the consistent coaching of W. W. Williams. Captain Tom Kachelmacher, George Roberts, Art Thompson, and Gene Waller formed the '28 fall team.

Football

Under the leadership of James Esterly, one of the most dependable captains to wear the Green and White, the West football team enjoyed a successful season, not from the standpoint of wins, but from the standpoint of learning football, setting a high standard for future West athletes, and team cooperation.

With but a handful of veterans around which to build an eleven, Coach C. J. Jackson started the coaching season by having a number of the football candidates report at a camp in the north woods. Here he endeavored to build solid material and to impart some of the darker secrets of the game. The next step in "Jack's" system was the sixth-hour football class.

Within a week of the first game with Central the Westerners received a serious setback when Ralph Rose, a veteran of the '27 squad, was declared ineligible; Don Noake, also a veteran, broke his arm; and Bill Robinson, a fullback, had an infection in his foot. Although the Western aggregation emerged on the short end of 13-0 count, the Red and Blue was later forced to forfeit the game for playing ineligible men. The Jacksonmen bowed to the Edison team 18-7 in the next game, and were humbled the following week by the Polars who trampled over the twice defeated Green and White gridders to the tune of 31-0 for the worst defeat of the season. All of the North touchdowns were piled over in the last part of the game.

The Westerners engaged the Marshall team in their next tilt and garnered their first victory over the Cards 8-7 after Goodman sent a well-directed pass to Perkins who romped over the goal line. In spite of the fine grade of football the Westerners displayed to hold the Southerners scoreless during the first half, the Orange and Black machine, which was destined to cop the city title, came back in the second half with a series of smashing plunges to conquer the Green and White. The Roosevelt aggregation was the next team to down the West men by the count of 6-0, but in the final game of the season Captain Esterly led his teammates off the field victors over Washburn, 7-6.

The annual fall athletic banquet was held in December for the men who were responsible for the best showing West has made in fall athletics in recent years. Max Johnson was elected captain of the 1929 Green and White aggregation winning by a narrow margin over two other backfield men, Perkins and Goodman. Willard Tatam was given the opportunity to lead the cross-country men in their battle for the permanent possession of the Josten trophy symbolic of state championship.

Letters, service bars and stars were awarded in a school auditorium on January 14 by George Doyle, president of the W Club, and John N. Greer, principal. Nineteen members of the first team football received felts. Don Noake, who was injured before the season started, was voted one by the Athletic Board of Control because of his work in 1927 before he was hurt. Termed by Coach Morris as the hardest working squad he had ever worked with, thirty-five second string men were given their numerals. Letters, stars and, in many cases, bars were the rewards that the champion cross country men received. Tennis and golf players were awarded four and five letters respectively.

Girls' Sports

During the fall, major sports, field hockey and basketball, were sponsored by the G. A. A. and the Girls' W club. Under specific supervision these sports maintained a definite purpose for the various class teams. The G. A. A. board managed all sport activities.

The participants of major sports were required to come out at least six times for general practice in order to make a first team. Thus by elimination and practice records the girls were picked for the tournament teams. For field hockey and basketball the girls were first placed on color teams in order that speed and skill might be acquired.

The minor sports, riding, hiking, swimming, and skating, were also headed by members of the board. These sports do not draw as large groups as the other phases of girls' athletics, but they serve a definite place in the organization of sport participation.

The interest in ice hockey as a new sport last year furthered the desire for it this season. A girl must pass the skating test and must come out for at least six practices to make a hockey team.

Those in charge of field hockey were Faith Thies; of basketball, Janet Craigie and Marion Lloyd; of hiking, Marion Bartholemew and Dorothy Harris; of riding, Betty Cobb and Louise Smith; of skating, Vera Slosson; and of ice hockey, Margaret McKay. The Girls' W club were the boosters of boys' basketball during the last season.

The four new members of the W club, Faith Anderson, Miriam Goldberg, Dorothy Oleson and Myra Wilson, swelled the club's membership to twenty-four. They received their awards at the letter auditorium held for the boys. City-wide emblems were awarded to Marion Loft and Pat Collins. A silver cup was presented to Pat Collins, the girl tennis champion at West for the past three years.

The girls will wear a letter much like the minor one of the boys in the future instead of the type now used. New pins were also adopted by the organization.

WESTERN FOLLIES

(APOLOGIES TO R. D., M. B.)

Musical accompaniment by Tatam's Shrieking Hounds and Yohe's Soup Inhalers

ACT I

Scene 1—Well known hall of misery and pain, furnished with uncushioned hard-wood seats, early in September, 1928.

Characters—We're not particular.

Multitudes, ever so many, students (we assume that name) are hurrying and scurrying into 302 on the jolly (?) first day of the year's agony. There are Cranbrook, Mulvehill and Rose, for, says Milton—or was it Miss Heffernan—bad pennies always come rolling home. Officer Bradley is doing his doorman's duties while Miss Holt is counting the chickens as they enter the brood.

Dietrich —2—, McAllister, Simonton, Powell —4—, and so they trip in in joyous school girl hop ballet.

Weakly Esterly stumbles in after his strenuous summer in the mountains with Miss Mary Cutler and the girls.

Brooks and Jeanne enter "ensemble"—Brooks once more on parlor duty.

Amidst a rumble and roar the drugstore cowboys, Sparks, Robinson and Child, blow in with their ponies, Caesar, Cicero and Vergil, as the squawkers warble "Johnnie, Get Your Gum."

For 'tis school days—you've guessed it—the golden rule days when McNaughten and Riebeth fight to sit next to Mr. Southworth in 404 and soak in the afternoon sunshine.

Reeder is back ready to annihilate the public with his lately learned composition entitled "Just Another Year Wasted Away," while Heard has merely increased her lung power during the free months.

Rapidly—quick like an eagle, swift like a tiger—the A Seniors, lucky bums, ease in to hear the usual welcoming speeches. Thus into the valley of death came the 150.

Scene 2—Central Field, day of the big game.

Midst hollers and shrieks, groans and sobs, Jackson men are seen toting, pushing and kicking the old pig-skin up and down the field in the first combat with the old enemies, the Red and Blue, while Nygord howls on the side-lines and Schussler devours peanuts and pop-corn, purchased by Sonnie Boy's hard-earned shekels.

"Such a sad old story," quoth Hosp as she folded her popcorn bag to give to the Service club's paper sale.

ACT II

Scene 1—Auditorium with seniors congregated.

The Marionettes are performing; VonGeise is being cruelly hacked up by Bob Saunders; Charles Cloud is proclaiming his woes in a wailing, sobbing Sax solo; pennies are raining on the stage, hurled by thoughtful studes—such is the dramatic commencement of the A seniors attempt to entertain their co-classmen. Oh, such a chance for the sophisticated seniors to revel, a revel which ends in a dramatic finish and a premature return to the trials of school books.

Scene 2—Same as in Act I, later in November, Green 'n' white streamers dangle from the ceiling, crowds rush to and fro.

Aldrich with his train-caller voice is seen vending green 'n' white wares while all the "wimmin" gather 'round him. Mannerude noisy, per usual, darts here and thither.

Adams, enriched by ten or twelve pennies acquired at the vaudeville the evening before, is treating himself to one of those shieks-cry-for-them Daubers' ties which so ensnare the wimmin, especially Ruth.

Hill, skipping all classes except lunch, is dancing away at the once-in-a-lifetime all day dance in the girls' gym, while the fond teachers say, "Go to it." For such are the joys and never-to-be-forgotten privileges enjoyed by these lucky seniors on the last Green n' White day at the old house of woe.

"Washing Washburn" seems to be the chief and lone idea that Foley carts around in his cranium while Brown and Cummings dish out well worn pennies to go and sit-in on the great event.

ACT III

Scene 1—Waiting room at the Miller Studios.

Amidst such carolings as "Oh, does my hair look all right?" "Oh, isn't that cute young thing going to take my picture?", "Oh, look at the keen picture of Moana Odell," "Can't you put powder on?", the seniors are going to "sit" for their pictures. Such an operation for such creatures as McLean and Powell who wish to see themselves as others see them! Grandma Garrett wishes to have her "ripe old age" portrayed to a "T", while no one is so vain about her charms as Lynch, who desires to have the bewitching blue of her Irish eyes tinted so Buehler will feel content.

Schmidt is attempting to inveigle the photographer into catching that devilish air. Foley's entrance causes much flutter midst the women who remark that he just slays them.

Scene 2—Back stage in the institution, early in December, the seventh day, to be exact.

Members of the all-star cast of Pomander Walk are seen dashing aimlessly back and forth back stage like lost lambs. Buehler, appearing quite natural with a blank look, is toting a bell and talking with the "girlth."

One by one, they submit to the operation of make-up. Shaking knees, costumes, paint overture, lights—the first, then the final curtain. Oh, what joy to be the heroes of the day!

Scene 3—Classroom during the sneeze-sniffle season.

MacConnell is rapidly devouring menthol cough drops, every now and then swapping for one of Gordy's Smith Bros. Teacher sneezes, coughs and fishes for her kerchief.

Scattered here and there are a few drooping students ornamenting the gaping desks. Coleman and her special topic are home recuperating; Harris and his are unable to respond—lost voice.

The individual Latin topics are quite individual in their absence while each bark proclaims a victim and the vapor-rub demand increases.

Scene 4—Same coop of worries, trials and tribulations.

"Venite Adoremus, Venite Adoremus, Dominum"

is heard permeating the halls and soon Kris Krieger and his caroling and chanting cherubs amble down the hall, lending a cheery Christmas spirit to the rooms, actually blessed by a glorious sunshine.

Folks who were confined at home with the flu were deprived of one of the real scenes of the Christmas season, and those who took the opportunity of laying in the family presents, missed a real part of the seasonal spirit but they finished their Christmas shopping.

ACT IV

Scene 1—Same old stall.

After all's said and done—Many years of labor and the worn and dilapidated seniors pose in their prettiest smiles on the platform of their soon-to-be alma-mater.

Pantin' Powell speaks her last speech, John Robb manages his last enterprise, Jeanne Jorgens acts the last time, and the first semiannual, a chronicler of winter, makes its debut. Wise crackers and funny faces, what will this worthy institution of knowledge (?) do without them? Wizards, Miss Americas, Sarah Bernhardts, Red Granges—they've really been appreciated and now they're going!

Scene 2—Same old place—the last time.

To the "Parade of the Wooden Soldiers," the radiant seniors are walking slowly—ever so slowly—up to the platform for the final scene of the Follies. Val and Sal realize their knees are knocking loudly—oh, so loudly—and happily. Feidt looks at his sheepskin up there with the rest of the herd and he sighs "At last," while Sparks lamps the pile and groans, "Just that little hunk of paper for those years of Math and French?"

THE Hesperian for January, 1929, may properly be regarded as an experiment. In breaking away from the yearbook tradition, the editors have seen fit to incorporate in this first semi-annual several innovations both in text and technique. Fourteen hundred copies of this volume have been printed, on special ivory Capricoated paper in a type designed by Charles Nicolas Cochin, the celebrated French engraver, and recently modernized for American use. Here ends this chronicle of winter, dedicated to the pupils who figure in its pages, and submitted to the archives of West High School as the record of a term's achievement.
